Speculation at the Stock Exchange was rather quiet, the dealings amounting to 150,796 shares. At the opening the market was inclined to weakness. Reading, however, was an exception, and moved up about a point on London buying. A committee had been appointed to look after the interest of the income bondholders. It is stated that it was not organized to autagonize A. A. McLeod, but simply to see that the rights of the income bondholders St. Paul, Burlington & Quincy and Lackawanna, depressing these stocks 4 to 142 points. The Western shares were adversely influenced by reports of railway strikes. American Sugar sold down to 117% at one time, and later rallied to 1194. It is understood that arrangements have been made to discount the 13 per cent, dividend payable on the common stock at 6 per cent. The books close March 14 and the dividend is payable April 2. LOCAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Trade of the Week Very Satisfactory, with

Prices in Some Lines Easter, The trade of the week, closing with Saturday, in most departments was very satisfactory in its volume. In several lines prices are weaker than for some weeks past, but the declines have not been as marked as was looked for. Eggs, farm seeds and some articles in the vegetable line are lower, but poultry, provisions and groceries all rule steady. Lower prices are likely to rule on poultry and provisions before many days, say those who think they can forecast the market. The dry-goods men have experienced a big trade the last week, and, while prices have not advanced on any line, the position of cotton and woolen goods is a strong one. Leather was very firm, but not quotably higher.

TRADING AT CHICAGO.

Over Friday's Figures Wheat Closed at a Gain of 1420 lee. CHICAGO, March II .- If there was any doubt about wheat being manipulated in the Chicago market that doubt disappeared to-day. The news received last night from Washington was calculated to depress prices and to dishearten ordinary holders, and to inaugurate a regular bear campaign. The trade got all ready for this, but it did not come. There was the peculiar sight at the opening of traders afraid to trade. A few had buying orders, and when they started in to get the wheat they found no offerings. They also felt, or thought they felt, the hand of the bull clique strong under the market. Shorts, who hesitated at first, were quickly converted into buyers. Instead of a break of 2c or 3c and a panicky market there was a bound of 14c, which put the May price at 78c soon after the opening. This upset all calculations. The impetus proved stronger than the government report; stronger than the shorts and more powerful for the moment than all bearish influences. Minneapolis had nearly four hundred cars. Chicago receipts were 300 cars. The exports for the week, according to Bradstreet's, were but 2,894,(0) bushels, compared with 3,251,000 bushels the week previous and 3,754,000 bushels a year ago. Liverpool wheat was quoted lower. Cash wheat was offered very freely 4c or more under the May price, with the Northwest ready to ship all that can be cared for and No. 2 Chicago grading guaranteed. All this went for nothing. The feature the report which gave the friends of wheat encouragement was that part which said that the stock was most of it in States where it could hardly be available commercially, the amount in surplus States being small. Yet the fact remains that counting the reserves visible and amount on passage we have now the largest per cent. of the crop in sight for years if not ever. The good buying at the start the crowd attributed to the local clique, as Eggleston was bidding in person for both May and July. There was heavy realizing at the advance, under which prices yielded to about yesterday's close, but again recovered. The close showed a gain of 4c over yesterday's closing figures for May, and an advance of to in July. Corn and provisions were tirmer and closed a tritle higher than on the day before. Oats unchanged. The Practical Poultry Culture. "Practical Poultry Culture" was the subject of an essay read this morning at the Plowman farmers' meeting in the John Hancock building by A. F. Hunter, editor of Farm Poultry, who spoke of the value of poultry raising to the individual farmer and explained the methods by which a substantial addition to his income might be

"Eggs," he said, "are an all-the-yearround crop. They have ready market at all seasons of the year, and as a basis of the poultry business an all-the-year-around income is assured the farmer. Winter eggs pay the greater profit and bring up the average price for the year to about 264 cents. If the fowls lay well in November and the winter months, when eggs are 40 cents a dozen, the average price for the year will be emmently eatisfactory. The whole story of getting eggs in winter can be resolved into three rules: Hatch the chickens early; keep them growing, as the pullets will come to laying maturity in October; and keep up the laying by good food and good care. For the heaviest varieties such as Brahmas and Cochins, the last of March is none too early to hatch. It is well to hatch Langehans, Plymonth Rocks and Wyandottes in April; Leghorns, Hamburgs and Minorcas can be hatched in May for best results. To keep the chickens growing, the rule of sweet, whole-some food must be followed. Feed five times a day for six weeks, then four times a day until the pullets are put into the pens to become layers. The cockerels should be separated from the pullets as soon as they can be picked out and sent to market and the pullets given a chance to grow. To keep fowls profitably through the winter there must be plenty of elbow room. If one has a house suitable for twenty fowls it would be folly to crowd forty into that space. The result is fewer eggs from the forty so treated. An excellent plan for a house is one twenty-four feet long and eighteen feet wide, four feet high at the back, six feet in front, with a shed roof. Such a house can be divided into two compartments and give all the accommodations for thirty fowls. Food for the first six weeks should be coarsest oatmeal, slightly moistened with sweet milk, and waste bread from hotels and restaurants. Stimulate exercise, as the cold weather approaches, by covering the floors three or four inches deep with chopped meadow hay or straw, into which the grain is dropped. This is an excellent idea. Whole wheat is the best grain food for fowls, whole barley is next, buckwheat next. Vary the feeding and induce the searching and scratching for food. It costs from $1.25 to $1.50 per year to feed a fowl in a common sense way, with a return of from $2.87 to $3.12 net profit, and that liberal profit coming in without much effort is gained by following the rules spoken of in the foregoing.

Broom Corn Culture,

Country Gentleman. A warm, rich soil is best snited to the growth of broom corn, such as the best for common corn; good river flats are particularly well adapted to its growth. It does well on inverted sod, if turned over the previous autumn, and made thoroughly mellow by cultivation. Well pulverized barn manure, thoroughly mixed with the soil, answers a good purpose. Broom corn may be planted in hills three feet apart, in rows three to four feet distant from each other. Enough seed should be used to leave six plants to the hill after thinning. The time of planting is nearly the same as common corn. As soon as the plants are fairly visible, run a cultivator between the rows and follow with a hand hoe. This may be repeated several times. Breaking the tops should be done before fully ripe, or when the seed is a little past the milk, which is done by bending over the tops of the rows toward each other, for the convenience of cutting afterward. They are then dried under cover. The brush is cleaned of its seed by hand, or by machines driven by horse power. We would not advise any one to go largely into its culture without some previous experience, as certain parts of the process require partioniar skill, and it is well, therefore, to begin on a moderate

DAILY.

SUNDAY

WEEKLY

The Journal's price for daily is only 15 cents a week, and it has a very wide circulation, reaching a large number of people hitherto unable to afford the luxury of a first-class daily paper. Reports from agents and subscribers indicate a continued increase, and that what used to be regarded as a luxury has become a necessity. The new readers not only remain, but they are constantly increasing.

It is the purpose of the Journal to make itself even more indispensable to its patrons, new and old, and to still further widen its field. To this end it will not only endeavor to maintain the characteristics which have established its reputation as by far the best newspaper in Indiana, but will add such new features and improvements from time to time as are in accord with journalistic progress and that may tend to the advantage of its readers. It will, for example, give increased attention to State and local interests. What Indianians want is a paper in which Indiana affairs are given especial prominence and importance. This want the Journal has always supplied as no other paper published outside or inside the State is able to do; but the rapidly developing industries and business and social enterprises of the community call for additional consideration and space, With this in view its corps of correspondents has been increased until it has a representative in nearly every town in the State. Special traveling correspondents will visit the news centers of the State at frequent intervals, thus insuring the "write up" of every important event or matter of general interest.

Being published in the geographical center of Indiana the Journal is afforded unusual facilities for securing news promptly, and, what is of greater consequence, is able to reach its subscribers without delay. The running of morning trains from Indianapolis is very favorable to the early distribution of papers sent by mail or express, and in most towns within a radius of a hundred miles Journals are delivered as early as in the city where they are printed. In the more remote counties there is but little loss of time in trans-

The Journal is the paper for Indianians and particularly for Indiana Republicans. The change of administration involves the settlement of political problems likely to be of the most direct personal concern to every farmer and business man in the State. All such matters will be set forth in detail, the Journal's Washington correspondent being instructed to give especial attention to everything having a possible bearing on Indiana interests. But though the Journal is Republican in politics it is non-partisan in the pub-I cation of news. Its constant endeavor is to secure facts unbiased by prejudice and to make its columns trustworthy records of each day's happenings. A large editorial force supplements the work of the press associations and the correspondents, and turnishes careful supervision for each department.

The Sunday Journal has a well-established literary character, superior to that of any Western paper. It is not defaced by "plate matter" nor filled with a heterogeneous mass of syndicate literature, but its contributions and miscellany are chosen with a view to their special fitness and adaptability to the tastes of the readers. The reading matter in any given number of the Sunday Journal is equal in quantity and is not inferior in quality to that found in the leading magazines. As an educational adjunct and a source of entertainment the Sunday Journal is indispensable in every well-regulated family.

The Weekly Journal, at $1 per year, contains more reading matter than can be obtained for the money in any other shape. It is carefully edited and offers the news of the week in condensed shape and a variety of miscellany, agricultural and household literature that render it one of the best investments that any family can make. Try it and see. It has a large circulation in this and other States and agents find it an easy matter to secure large lists of subscribers. Special inducements offered to agents.
